The Greeks were physically perfect and beautiful because they were healthy. The man who suffers from ill-health cannot be physically robust and manly. The woman who is sickly cannot be beautiful and womanly. Most all forms of ill-health have their inception in disorders of the digestion. When the digestion is bad the blood becomes impure, and is imperfectly supplied with the food-elements that build up new and healthy tissues, and tear down and carry away those that are inert and half-dead. The nerves are not rebuilt from day to day with new, vigorous, active fibers. Every organ, tissue, muscle and nerve in the body is half famished for healthy nutriment. Almost any disease in the category of human ills may be the result of this condition. Most frequently it is the most deadly of disorders—consumption. Sometimes it is some other wasting disease. Again, it may be scrofula or some skin disease.

There is a sure preventive and remedy for these conditions and maladies. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It restores the lost or failing appetite and invigorates the liver. It fills the arteries with the pure, rich, red blood of health. It builds new, firm flesh, healthy, active nerve fibers, and strong elastic muscles. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, and wasting diseases. It cures nervous prostration. Druggists sell it.

The man who is too lazy or neglectful to take an occasional dose of medicine to ward off the evil effects of constipation deserves to die. And he will surely get his deserts, for constipation is the first cause of much sickness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They never gripe. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All good druggists sell them. No other pills are as good.

NAVAL MISHAPS.

We Make Too Much Fuss and Sensation Over Trifles.

We have a good navy, and we do not appreciate it. As a matter of fact, casualties to our new armorclads and cruisers have not been particularly frequent when their size and their number are considered. In this country every trivial mishap is caught up and exploited by the sensational newspapers, but nothing is said of similar accidents in foreign navies. Barring the destruction of Admiral Kimberly's fleet by the German hurricane in 1890, which no skill or foresight could have prevented, our naval service for many years has been remarkably free from really serious disasters.

There is nothing in our records to compare with the capsizing of the British frigate Captain with half a thousand men in 1870, or the fatal collision of the British ironclads Vanguard and Iron Duke in 1875, or that of the German ironclad Kaiser Wilhelm and Grosser Kurfurst the year following, when 900 men perished, or the loss of the British training ships Eurydice and Atlanta in 1878 and 1880 with 600 officers, sailors and apprentice boys, or the sinking of the British flagship Victoria, with Admiral Tryon, 22 officers and 330 sailors, by collision with the Campedown on June 22, 1893, in the Mediterranean, or the wreck of the Spanish cruiser Reina Regente, on March 19, 1895, with 420 officers and seamen.

The list of minor accidents to foreign naval vessels in the past few years would be so long to enumerate. But the stranding of the British ironclads Howe and Anson, the flagship Amphion and the cruiser Sultan were far more grave affairs than any such accidents which have occurred to any of our own heavy vessels within this period. We have had our fair share of troubles, perhaps, but no more than that.—Boston Journal

SHE OBEYED ORDERS.

Couldn't Be Blamed if Some of Her Friends Refused to Give Their Names.

They had been discussing that everlasting servant problem, which can always be depended upon to furnish a topic for conversation when three or four women are gathered together. Each had told of her experience with her "help," when one of them said: "My new housemaid is the greenest girl you ever saw in your life. Her ignorance is a perpetual source of wonder to me. The day after I got her I went out shopping and told her if any one called during my absence to say I was out and ask his name. These seemed simple instructions, but I thought she would need them.

"When I returned, I asked if anybody had called.

"Yes, mum; they did," she replied.

"Who were they?"

"They wouldn't tell their names," she answered.

"Wouldn't tell their names!" I exclaimed in surprise.

"Yes, mum; but I think one of them said 'bananas' and the other 'rags'."

"I demanded further particulars.

"I tried to tell them you was out and ask their names. You hadn't been gone very long when one of them came. It was the man who called 'bananas,' and I remembered what you said, mum, and I went after him and told him you was out. He asked me if I wanted any bananas, and I told him no; that you was out, and asked what was his name. But he wouldn't tell me. It was the same with the other person who called. He called 'rags,' and only laughed at me when I ran after him."—Chicago Times-Herald

A MAN OF APPETITE.

AN AWFUL ORDEAL FOR A DYSPETIC LITTLE LAWYER.

Went into the Restaurant Just to Have a Few Oysters.—Met Mr. Grump, the Brewer, Who Was Lurching a Little Before Going Home to Supper.

"There used to be a famous place for these things down in Atlanta," remarked the portly gentleman as he cautiously eyed the Welsh rabbit and sipped his nutty ale.

"Why, don't these suit you?" asked the man who had never traveled.

"Oh, yes, fine, but I was just thinking of a little incident that occurred there."

"A story, is it? Well, let's have it."

"It's not much of a story, but I will tell it the best I can. You see, the place I spoke of was kept by a man named Beismister and was not only famous for his Welsh rabbits, but for his oysters and hand crabs as well. Delicious they were too."

"There was a dyspeptic little lawyer around town, sharp and shrewd, but a martyr to the stomach. He used to go around with the boys until some one would suggest going over to Beismister's and getting some crabs and beer; then you could rent the lawyer out. The boys would try to persuade him by telling him how delightful were the crabs, how succulent the oysters, but the lawyer would flee from them in terror at the thought.

"About 5 o'clock one fine afternoon in the early spring a friend and myself were journeying toward Beismister's when we met the dyspeptic lawyer. As usual, he stopped us for a little chat, and we walked down the street together. In a few moments we were in front of Beismister's, and my friend, taking a different tack, persuaded the little lawyer to enter with us on the plea that we would find no one in at this time of day and that we were only going to eat a few oysters."

"Once inside, we found the place crowded. The seats at the tables were all occupied, except at one table, over in a far corner of the room, at which there were three vacant chairs, the fourth being occupied by a fat German brewer named Grump. We knew Grump, and so went to this table. I introduced the lawyer—blatly, I believe his name was—to the brewer and ordered beer for the crowd. The lawyer protested, so we left him out.

"Mr. Grump," I remarked, "we are about to have a few oysters. Won't you join us?"

"Well, you see, I have already something ordered."

"Oh, that's all right," I insisted. "A few oysters will give you an appetite."

"Is dot so? Yah, I take me a few—chast you kittle dozen."

"My friend had been engaged in an earnest conversation with the lawyer while I was talking to the jolly old German, and when the waiter came with the beers he told him to bring some crabs, 2½ dozen oysters on the shell and a glass of hot water. He had persuaded Blatly to try some oysters."

"At Beismister's when an order was given for crabs they invariably brought a dozen, and you paid for as many as you consumed out of that number. The waiter soon returned with oysters, crabs and hot water. In the meantime Grump, who was a great talker, had struck up a conversation with the lawyer, and they were cracking jokes at a great rate.

"Blatly's courage fell when the oysters were placed before him. He manfully drank the hot water and commenced to imitate Grump's heroic style of eating oysters. He managed to down two and then laid his fork gently by his plate and fastened his eyes on Grump. With the aid of a few glassfuls of beer the brewer's oysters had vanished. My friend had managed to get away with two crabs and insisted that Grump help him dispose of the remainder. I was still busy with my dozen oysters."

"Well, I help you some," said Grump, and picking up a knife he went at those crabs like a darky smacking oysters. The dyspeptic watched him as if fascinated and remarked in a sneering tone that came straight from the stomach:

"You have a good appetite, Mr. Grump."

"Yah, I think pretty good," and he actively went for another crab. The dish was cleared in a few moments, and I made a mental note that Grump had eaten nine crabs, a dozen large oysters, and drank ten glasses of beer. When the crabs were no more, Grump called to a waiter:

"Here, Franz, I am waiting."

"Franz disappeared, and in a few moments brought in a large Welsh rabbit and deposited it before Grump. I could see the little lawyer shrink from the odor wafted across the table, but he was game and would have staid at that table until he died. Grump insisted that we share the dish with him, but all hands refused.

"With apparent relish and a fresh glass of beer he attacked the rabbit, and in an incredibly short time the dish was clear of the least particle. Grump wiped his mouth, folded his napkin, and called for another round of beers. If I had not had a reputation to sustain, I would have refused, but as it was we drained the glasses.

"Now, I must home be going," remarked Grump, rising.

"What's your hurry?" asked the dyspeptic lawyer in his most sarcastic tones.

"Do stay and have something else."

"No, I want to mein supper go," answered the German.

"The dyspeptic waited. Now, if you are looking for a fight, just tell that little lawyer that Grump wants him to eat supper with him. You'll get it quick and strong."—Washington Post

THE WAVE OF PROSPERITY.

At the Pittsburgh American Iron works wages were cut 10 per cent and the hands struck, the works closed down and 3,500 men are idle.

Over 1,000 men stopped work at the Reading Iron Works, Pa., on a cut of wages of 10 per cent. This is the second reduction of wages since March 1st.

The majority of the men claim that they voted for McKinley on his theory that he would sooner see the mills open than the mints.

The President of the Reading Iron Works, a life long Democrat, bolted Bryan and made speeches for McKinley and prosperity. He now finds himself in a hole and his men proclaim that "they were the worst fooled men in the country."

During the past month no less than four anthracite blast furnaces in the Schuylkill valley closed permanently and will be dismantled.

At New York, 12,000 cloakmakers struck on account of a reduction of wages, and a number of kindred organizations have suspended work on a sympathetic strike.

John A. Finch of Spokane, after a visit to St. Paul, Chicago, Cleveland, and many other eastern cities, returns and reports that one word would express the business and financial condition, and that was the word "flat."

"There is nothing doing."

Another prominent man reports that he visited a number of the manufacturing centers and saw the glaring posters, with the President's picture in bold relief headed "McKinley and prosperity," still displayed all over mills and furnace buildings, that were closed and boarded up, the wheels dead and the furnaces cold. He remarked that the display of the posters on the dead walls struck him as an anachronism, when the existing conditions and the promises of the Republican campaigners of a few months ago were taken into consideration.

Six hundred idle men are walking the streets of Altoona, Pa., and the Standard Oil works at Cleveland, O., shut down for an indefinite period. The foreman told the men that there would be no work for weeks, and maybe a much longer time. Close to 1,000 men are thrown out of work.

And these examples of the "wave" are comparatively only a few of what might be offered, not counting thousands of business and individual failures that never receive prominent mention.

AN INCOME TAX AMENDMENT.

Senator Butler of North Carolina has proposed an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to place a tax on incomes. He says it will take about ten years to amend the Constitution and he desires to know whether the committee intends to report the amendment, for, if it does not, he wants the Senate to consider it in committee of the whole.

The Income Tax Act was the fairest method ever devised to procure revenue for the support of the Government. It required no man to pay taxes who did not have the money to pay. All incomes under $4,000 a year were exempt from taxation, and incomes in excess of that amount were taxed two per cent per annum. If crops failed or a man was unsuccessful in his business ventures, so that his profits did not exceed $4,000 a year, he was exempt from the tax. A similar tax on incomes had been previously levied and collected, but the Supreme Court now decides the law unconstitutional and Senator Butler wants the Constitution amended so that the tax can be levied and collected.

Two years ago Senator Butler proposed a similar amendment to the Constitution. It was referred to the Judiciary Committee and there carefully put in a pigeon hole from which it was never taken. The same fate, doubtless, awaits this one if the Senator does not spur up the members of the committee and virtually compel them to report for or against the amendment. To amend the Constitution of the United States requires the adoption of the amendment by a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress and the ratification of the amendment by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States. It will probably be difficult to get the requisite number of votes in the present House of Representatives, but a vote on the amendment will show the people how the members stand so that they can at the next election know who are opposed to the tax and let them stay at home.

The time of the Senate was taken up by a discussion of the tariff bill yesterday. Some time was taken up in trying to have the Senate convene at 11 A. M. after Wednesday. This was finally agreed to on the condition that the adjournment daily would occur at 5 P. M. The debate on the sugar schedule and sugar trust waxed warm, Allen of Nebraska insisting that the Senate should not waste time on this gigantic monopoly when the federal courts had jurisdiction over it. He also spoke in favor of abrogating the Hawaiian treaty as a means of developing the beet sugar industry and checking the inroads of Havemeyer, Spreckles and the American Sugar Trust.

Only the truth has been told of Trib. That is why people trust it.

Three young ladies while walking home from church Sunday evening near Bellair, O., were struck by lightning killing them all instantly.

Howard A. Scott, convicted of killing his wife October 26, 1896, in New York, was electrocuted yesterday. His death was almost instantaneous.

Moravia, a town near Los Angeles and at Lucky Baldwin's ranch, was visited by a disastrous fire yesterday. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

The explosion of a lamp at the residence of Stephen Walsh, near Sharpshurg, Pa., yesterday morning caused the destruction of the house and four persons were badly burned.

The two children of Frank Prestel, aged sixteen months and two years, at Dayton, Ohio, were burned to death yesterday. They were playing with matches and set the house on fire.

The report that the insurgent leaders Rivera and Bacolou at Cuba are in danger of being shot is denied. It is claimed that not a single insurgent leader is under sentence of death.

It is reported that the Republican Senators will hold another caucus to consider Senator Spooner's proposition to modify the tariff bill so as to protect the Government against large importations under the present law.

The earthquakes in India are more serious than at first reported. Great damage and loss of life has resulted. The Bengal railroad is so badly damaged that trains cannot move. The heat is the highest ever known, the thermometer registering 126 degrees in the shade.

An attempt was made yesterday to wreck a train on the Culvert line in New York by turning a switch. On Sunday night an attempt was made to wreck an excursion train with 1,000 people aboard on the Sea Beach road. So far the train wreckers have not been apprehended.

The town of Georgetown, El Dorado county, suffered a disastrous fire yesterday. Telegraphic and telephonic communication was cut off, but latest advices gave information that the business part of the town was a total loss and the conflagration had extended to the residence portion.

Gladys Mathewey, a courtesan, shot at Victor de Martini, the official French interpreter of courts, on Kearney street, San Francisco, yesterday morning, creating great excitement. The woman's aim was bad and no one was injured. She was arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Senators Hoar and Tillman had a clash on the charges against Senators for speculating in sugar stock. Hoar claimed that the charges were not only preposterous, but infamous. Tillman replied, "we cannot hide behind our Senatorial togas. I believe the charges and have asked for an investigation. If the Senate declines to examine the charges it stands convicted before the country."

The Hawaiian annexation treaty will be sent to the Senate shortly after the return of the President. The treaty is on the general lines negotiated during President Harrison's administration. It provides for annexation without the exactions of conditions on the part of Hawaiians as to the form of government leaving the question to the United States. The United States will assume the debt of the present Hawaiian government, but will come into possession of all the Hawaiian Crown lands. One of the reasons given for prompt action on the part of this government is that the conditions now existing demand it and delay may give the Japanese an opportunity to acquire the islands.

A Diamond Ear-Ring Lost Twenty Years Ago, Found.

A circumstance somewhat out of the usual order occurred in the Mottville cemetery a few days ago. Something over twenty years ago, Grandma Mott, the wife of one of the earliest settlers of Carson Valley, died in Mottville and was buried in the little cemetery mentioned above. Among those present during the closing services in the cemetery was Miss Elrod, now Mrs. Geo. W. Richards of Carson. While there she lost a diamond ear-ring, for which a long and fruitless search was made. Day after day, the ground was gone over, but the missing gem refused to be discovered. About three weeks ago, Miss Nora Mott, Clara Lupton and several lady friends were engaged in clearing up burial plots in the cemetery, when Miss Mott's attention was attracted by the glitter of something on the ground and stooping to examine it she found it to be the long lost piece of jewelry.—News

BEAUTIFUL FLORENCE.

A City Praised For Its Good Manners and Harmonious Surroundings.

If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer to Truth (London). There may be ill-mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the suave dignity which used in England to stamp the lady of gentleman. Most persons are friendly, but cleverness is not rarer to be seen. It is very cultured and more oily than elsewhere. The charm of Florence stems from the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners of life. Architects understand children not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wearies of the sights and public buildings. Their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at 10 in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at 4 in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting though not beautiful faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models for Raphael's Virgin mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de' Medici? Lottinas is an attribute of Florentine architecture, palatial or domestic. The doors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way. Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation and tranquil, generous loveliness I can only think of one—the Duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the Prince and Princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral line, is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well ordered design is required, and one has it. The marbles are the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliant to the face and satin of a fine woman's dress.

Florence is not what it was in the grand ducal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with a long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the Paris standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more's the pity. Paris fashions only suit Frenchwomen, unless applied by French hairdressers and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a dreadful disadvantage if the hair has not been first dressed by a French artist capillaire. He places the hat, through the medium of the hair, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffeurs are not much employed by Italian ladies.

Advice to Young Authors.

There is but one way for an author to get his work before the editors, and that is to send his manuscript to the periodical to which he believes it to be best suited. If he deals with the principal publications, he can always feel certain of courteous treatment and honest dealing. Prices vary and depend on the value of the material to the publisher. Editors are always glad to examine manuscripts sent to them, and all talk to the contrary notwithstanding, are anxious to discover unknown talent.—Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

Rich Hook.

S. Pedrol, the Silver City mining man, has taken out some small bunches of gold ore from his claim recently. He has a small mill right in his house that he works his ore in, and it is not known exactly what it goes to the ton, but it is reported that some of it, worked in this way, has yielded over $6 per pound, or over $12,000 per ton.—Lyon County Times.

THE "GAZETTE" AND DR. BERGSTEIN.

The Asylum Seems to be a Constant Bone of Contention Without Cause.

Without going into the details of the controversy that seems to be a matter of public interest in regard to the management of Dr. Bergstein of the Hospital for Mental Diseases and the Gazette's criticisms it might be of interest to review in a general way the chronic kicks against this State institution.

For years the unfortunates of Nevada were kept under contract by Dr. Clark of Stockton. At each succeeding term of the Legislature objections were filed that came as near being charges against the management for the care of Nevada's insane as could well be made, but on the other hand the contractor had his friends and by the smooth work of the lobby the system was continued. In the course of time this influence was overcome and Dr. Dawson, through a Board of Directors that was friendly to the project of building an asylum for Nevada, placed the matter before the Legislature and after the usual obstacles were overcome, the project was accomplished and the Asylum built and Dr. Dawson personally transferred the 100 or 140 patients from California to Nevada without accident or any great confusion. This feat alone was heralded far and wide and for the time being Dr. Dawson was complimented and congratulated for doing something that had seemed almost an impossibility. He systematized the business of the Asylum and inaugurated a management that in the course of events has been improved upon. Notwithstanding his earnest efforts, fault was found and from a simmer, the contention grew into a boil and the result was his ultimate removal and which to-day, by many people, was considered an outrage and a detriment to the State.

Dr. Bishop was appointed Superintendent and matters ran along with the accompanying clashes and criticisms until a certain condition of feeling was stirred up, complaints were made and an investigation brought about and several hundred if not thousands of dollars of the public funds were expended to gratify the prejudices of a few individuals who were loud in their denunciations of the Asylum management, but when requested to go on the stand or make affidavit, claimed that "they had heard so," or they didn't care about being connected with the investigation.

After ten days of tedious trial, the Board of Commissioners ignored the whole business and Dr. Bishop continued as Superintendent for several years afterwards.

Dr. Thoma succeeded Dr. Bishop and the usual chestnuts were cracked and held up as sweet morsels for public comment. Matters of comparatively silly import were brought forward with a view of crippling and obstructing a management that was believed by the people to be in the interest of the patients and the taxpayers. There may have been some personal differences, but these occur in all State institutions and are of little consequence to the taxpayers as a whole. Dr. Thoma's reports were made to the Board of Commissioners as were Dr. Bishop's, the Board was satisfied and commended him accordingly.

Now follows Dr. Bergstein. He has served two years as Superintendent. His report is on file, he has asserted that he is willing to abide by it and has invited anyone interested to visit the asylum and look into every detail, figure and transaction. Can anyone do more? While the JOURNAL does not approve of Dr. Bergstein's so-called boycott, it believes the Gazette is making more out of it than it really amounts to. Dr. Bergstein may have foolishly or in the heat of anger made a remark that perhaps deserves criticism, but even so, there are other instances of prominent men making just such foolish remarks on the street every day, but luckily they do not happen to be in public positions. The asylum is perhaps the most difficult institution in our State to run to the entire satisfaction of everyone. There are about or nearly 200 unfortunates, each one of whom has a friend or relative that believes special attention should be paid that particular patient and the general public feels it is the right of every individual to kick at the management. In addition to this there are some twenty employees who the Superintendent has to look after and be responsible for in almost every act. The position is not a sinecure by any means and whether it is Dr. Bishop, Dr. Thoma or Dr. Bergstein, or no matter what their political affiliation may have been or may be now, each one of them no doubt has tried in the past to serve the State to the best of his ability and the several Boards of Commissioners for the care of the indigent insane is the court of last appeal and when the acts of the heads of State institutions are approved by the respective boards, criticisms, comments and side slaps at the management smacks more strongly of personal or some other predjudice than it does of an earnest and devoted interest in the welfare of "a taxridden people."

Matt Farrott was fishing for trout Sunday evening and was astonished to observe a night hawk that was skimming over the surface of the water, catch up his fly and swallow it. Matt was not discomfited in the least, but pulled the bird in and remarked to it while taking it off the hook, "darn ye, ye 'ort to know better than to do a thing like that and give people trouble when there is no occasion for it."

Board of City Council.

Meeting called to order by President Osborn. All present. Reading of the minutes of the previous meeting; same approved.

A Mr. Dean of Wadsworth appeared before the meeting and asked that an ordinance licensing bill posting be passed. As the act does not provide for a license on bill posting Mr. Dean's request was refused.

Under the report of Special Committee, Mr. Ryland presented a report showing property he received from Commissioner Hymers on May 24th as city property.

The list of property was read and on motion of Mr. Noyes the report was adopted and the committee discharged.

Mr. Ryland also made a statement as regards the flushing of the sewers. After investigation and discussion it was discovered that there was one main sewer running in an easterly and westerly direction from the upper end of town to near the cattle bridge, and that to finish the entire system necessitated the continuance of paying the water company $57.50 a month for this purpose and the English Mill Co. $18.50. Some discussion followed relative to ways and means of providing a cheaper method of flushing the sewers.

Mr. Ed. Barber presented an ordinance relative to persons bathing in the river within the city limits. The same was read the first time and laid over until the next meeting.

Some discussion arose regarding the transfer of funds and an official letter was transmitted to the Commissioners regarding the same. The regular monthly bills were then considered and allowed and the Board adjourned.

Honorable Visit Tahoe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Church spent the past week along the eastern shore of Lake Tahoe. At Glenbrook they overtook the Westlake party and accompanied it as far as Bijon.

Mr. and Mrs. Westlake while taking their summer outing among the mountains, will extend their trip along the coast as far as Southern California, in search of a new home where it is hoped that Mrs. Westlake's health may be improved.

At the very small towns and camps on their way, they are giving a series of gospel talks, illustrated with the stereopticon, which have been received with much pleasure and interest at the towns already passed through.

Mr. and Mrs. Church returned from Glenbrook to incline by trail and thence to Reno by the new road. They report so much snow on the grade back of Mt. Slide that wagons will not be able to cross the summit for several weeks, and that the road is becoming so badly washed that in many places it will soon be only a trail.

The Palace Hotel.

The Palace Hotel is being thoroughly renovated and painted from cellar to garret. Over 200 yards of new carpet has been laid in the rooms and the work is not completed yet. Messrs. Derby & Fitzgerald are determined to make this popular hotelier all that the travelling public can desire in elegance and comfort. Every department including the restaurant and bar is run in first-class style, the edibles and drinkables being of the best to be obtained in the market. As far as the proprietors are concerned little need be said. Every one knows Larry Derby and John Fitzgerald as genial and accommodating landlords and first-class gentlemen.

Have Your Eyes Examined.

Dr. Mendelsohn, oculist optician, late of San Francisco, has secured an office in the Bank of Nevada building, where he can be consulted by any person having eye trouble or inconvenience from glasses, causing neuralgia, headache, dizziness or inflammation of the eyes. The doctor comes to Reno highly recommended and is endorsed by the Nevada Medical Society and local physicians. All consultations free of charge and if glasses are required they will be furnished at reasonable prices. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. jun12w1dw

Will Ascend Mount Rose.

A party consisting of Professor Church and wife, Dr. McN. Miller and wife, Rev. F. C. Lee, Rev. S. Unsworth, wife and sister, will take a copper tube provided by the Sierra Club, for holding names of those visiting the summits of high mountains on the Sierra range, to the top of Mount Rose. It is supposed that tourists will register their names, conditions of the weather, and other data, and in due time the record is taken and placed in the Academy of Sciences.

The party will leave this morning, the weather permitting.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Jamison took the train for San Francisco last evening. They accompany Frank Enyart, Mrs. Jamison's brother, who was seriously injured by a blast at the Antelope mine a few days ago. He will consult Dr. Barkan regarding his eyes, one of which seems to be seriously if not permanently injured.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store. Regular size, 50 cts. and $1.

The Viavi Ointment.

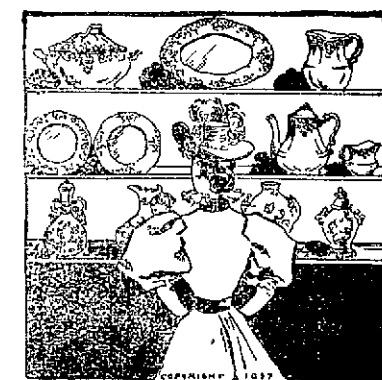

It is impossible to take Viavi into the system without benefit. It is purely vegetable and as a nerve and tissue builder has no equal. It can be used with perfect safety by the most delicate, and is used upon the smallest children.

Jefferson's boyhood Residence.

Jefferson spent part of his early boyhood at Truckee, on the James river, a fine house still in existence about 14 miles west of Richmond, which has not parted with the traditions inseparable from an old Virginia mansion, including a bed slept in by General Washington, a perambulating ghost who wrings his hands before cock crow and stables where a stud of thoroughbred horses consumed annually "1,000 barrels of corn." Near the flower garden, with its box edged walks, stands a little brick building styled the schoolhouse, wherein studied together Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Mann Randolph, the boy heir of the estate, to which his guardian, Peter Jefferson, had removed with his family, the better to watch over his orphaned charge. This Thomas Mann Randolph married, first, Anne, daughter of Archibald Cary of Amherst, the fiery patriot of the Revolution, known by the sobriquet of "Old Iron." The oldest son of this marriage became Mr. Jefferson's son-in-law. Very late in life Colonel Randolph solaced his widowhood by taking to wife a beautiful young girl in her teens, Miss Gabriella Harvie of Richmond, an event that soon scattered from her husband's home the children of his first marriage.

One might go far without finding advice so kind, so temperate, in such exquisite sympathy with the difficulties of poor human nature in families of diverse elements, as that of the letter written by Mr. Jefferson to his daughter upon the subject of this marriage of her father-in-law in 1790. An odd outcome of the much discussed nuptials was that the new Mrs. Randolph, imperiously ignoring the fact that her oldest stepson was already in possession of the name, bestowed upon her own son also his father's name of Thomas Mann Randolph. From this high spirited and captivating Mrs. Gabriella Randolph descended the Misses Ella and Emily Chapman of Philadelphia, married respectively to the Marquis Louis de Rodestad and Prince Emanuele d'Aragona.—New York

Modern Medicines.

The great improvement in the present as compared with the past methods of administering medicines deserves a passing comment. Scarcely a generation ago the threat of a dose of the nauseous drugs of the day was sufficient to suppress the worst of evil propensities in the most wicked boy. When actually in need of medication, he was held in the chair and gagged to exhaustion in the parental anxiety to measure the capacity of his unwilling stomach with the bulky contents of the justly hated bottle. Too frequently the struggle had more to do with the perspiration than the medicine. Very often, for obvious reasons, the bottle broke before the fever. Castor oil was a punishment, rhubarb was a terror and scurra an abomination.

The nauseous mixtures of our grandfathers are now replaced by the elegant and almost tasteless compounds of modern pharmacy. The essentials of the former remedies are now given in the form of condensed extracts and alkaloids, in proportionately reduced bulk and in consistently concentrated form. Single remedies with special indications take the place of the old fashioned shotgun mixtures. Tablets, pellets and pills no longer offend the palate, and even gumme, the bitterest enemy of taste, now serves for favor in sugar coated armor. The invariable stomach which denies the usual approach to the internal economy is now diplomatically cheekmated by an injection under the skin, which, although a longer way round, is a sure way home.—Dr. George F. Shrady in Forum.

Translations.

Robert B. Bryant died, in 1868, says Henry D. Longworth, Jr., in The Atlantic, Bryant betook himself for consolation to the "Iliad" and the "Odyssey," which he completely translated before December, 1871, at the age of 77. There are a few things more touching than this comfort tenderly given by man to man across the gap of 2,500 years. Nothing furnishes a more eloquent argument of the worth of poetry and of its profound humanity than this. The translation of Homer is a very personal matter and seems to be one of the chief in the life of Bryant. Bryant's translation was a success. Bryant's success, so were Lord Byron's and Sir Bryant's. Mr. Longworth and his associates, also Professor Palmer, have made excellent translations.

All these renderings are very different, one from another, and doubtless owe their respective successes to the variety among them. There is one class of people which has never read the Greek, another that has read and forgotten, a third and small class which compares the translation and the original, and there are other persons still who condemn all translations of Homer without reading them. Bryant's work is said to be faithful to the original, but the stories of Ilium and of Odysseus feel somewhat ill at ease in English blank verse. The Greek spirit is so different from our spirit, the Greek language is so unlike our language, that almost all translators, and Bryant among them, must not content with moderate gains.

Upon taking editorial charge of the Kennebec Journal Mr. Blaine soon familiarized himself with Maine politics by studying the files of The Journal, and he studied them closely as far back as 1826. By this means he soon became the best posted man in the state on Maine politics, and he was looked upon as authority. His able editorials during the campaign bringing up political matters of the past showed careful research, and they were copied widely. It was while editor of The Journal that he was one day stopped on the street by an old lady whom he had never seen before and asked to write up the wedding of her daughter, which occurred the night before.

Blaine had served his time in congress and went to Maine to speak during his campaign, when at the close of his speech he began shaking hands with the masses crowded around him. An old lady with wrinkled brow and whitened hair, bearing a babe in her arms, approached and offered her hand.

"Why, how do you do?" said Mr. Blaine. "Where's that daughter of yours I wrote up that wedding notice about?"

"Poor Lucy is dead," said the old lady, and her eyes filled with tears. "This is her child."

The man with the big, kind heart reached over and kissed the little blue eyed girl.

During the Greeley campaign in 1872 ex-Governor Cumbach of Indiana spoke with Mr. Blaine in Springfield, O. This was early in the campaign. Just before the election Mr. Cumbach was sent up in Blaine's state to make a speech. He was told by the committee that he would find Maine people very stiff and inhospitable and quite different from the western people. Mr. Cumbach was surprised, however, at his enthusiastic reception, there being large crowds everywhere, and he never had a more enthusiastic meeting than at Augusta. He told Blaine of the incident and his agreeable disappointment.

"Oh," said the statesman, "they had a map of unusual stuff to get them stirred up. Such a man as a speech as you are would have a good reputation anywhere."

"But what do you know about my speech?" asked the governor.

"Didn't you speak with me over at Springfield?" said Blaine in a way as a reminder. Then he went ahead and told Mr. Cumbach all about his speech, of the vivid present and gave promptly all the points of the speech and arranged the party with them. He also related at what hotel they put up and what day of the week it was.

Another instance of Blaine's great memory is related in the following story, told by Mr. Cumbach:

During the Greeley campaign Mr. Blaine spoke at Cumbach's town. He was introduced by Mr. Cumbach and driven over to town.

"There's a fellow in that house there that I've been telling you up for president for some years," said the governor, "and he thinks there is no one else but Blaine."

"Are you president?" said Blaine.

"Yes, you for president. Do you want to stop and go in to see him a minute? Nothing would please him better."

They went in and remained a few minutes. Blaine trotted the children on his lap and talked freely with the sick man, whose name was David Kerr.

Blaine and the governor met at Garfield's inauguration.

"How are you, Will?" asked Blaine. And he asked all about the men he had met in Cumbach's town several months before and called nearly all of them by their first names. "Oh, yes," he said, "how is Dave Kerr? Did he ever get well? Poor fellow, he suffered terribly. And these little children, how about them?"

This may be considered a wonderful feat of memory. It was in October when he met these people, and it was on the 4th of March, nearly five months afterward, that he recalled his visit, remembering the name of every person he was introduced to on that day. He had seen a million people since that time and had shaken hands with and met thousands.

Mr. Cumbach accompanied Mr. Blaine on his speaking tour through Indiana during his campaign in 1884. It was just two days before election. Cumbach left him at Lafayette, saying that he would not see him again until the inauguration.

"I don't know," said Blaine doubtfully. "I'm afraid it won't be."

He had an unusual, vacant, faraway look in his eyes, and he was very nervous. His words came slowly and hesitatingly. Mr. Cumbach assured him that there was no doubt, but Blaine shook his head.

"I don't know," said he. "I've had a sort of feeling for the last week that I wouldn't be elected. I hope I will, but the odds are doubtful, and I feel now as if I were very doubtful. But if I am elected, I shall be sure to work hard."

At the inauguration...
